

Chapter 27 (1 - 8)

For the journey to Rome, Paul and some other prisoners were put in the custody of a soldier named Julius. After sailing for one day, we arrived at the city of Sidon, where Julius kindly allowed Paul to meet with some friends

Then we sailed past Cyprus and reached the city of Myra in Lycia, where we changed to a ship bound for Italy.

The wind was against us near Crete. We struggled along the coast to a place called Fair Havens.

Jesus, help prison guards to be kind like Julius

Chapter 27 (9 - 20)

Navigation at that time of the year was dangerous, since winter was starting. But the ship's captain set sail hoping to reach Phoenix, a harbor in Crete

Suddenly a fierce storm began and the ship could not be turned head-on to the wind.

We had to let ourselves be driven by the wind

The ship was badly damaged by the storm. On the second day, the cargo was dumped overboard.

For several days both sun and stars were invisible as the storm raged. We lost all hope of surviving.

Jesus, help sailors who are in danger at sea today
